

The Colonnade

Volume VIII.

Georgia State College for Women, Milledgeville, Ga., Tuesday, January 24, 1933.

Number 15.

Music Will Be Important Part On Bi-Centennial Program

Music Department at G. S. C. W. Will Feature In Elaborate Event

The celebration of Georgia's Bi-Centennial will draw heavily on the members of the music department, for orchestral music, chorus work, quartettes, duets, and solos; piano, organ; and other instruments will play a part. Probably at no time before have so many songs about Georgia or for Georgia been given before a Milledgeville audience, in one performance, as will be given that night. Miss Leonora Tucker, head of the music department of the college, has general charge of the music for the evening, and will coach the singing. Three Georgia songs—Harroldson's "Cherokee Rose," N. K. Smith's "The Red Old Hills of Georgia," and Perry's and Spalding's "Blest is the Land Fair Georgia"—will be sung by a quartette composed of Mrs. L. P. Longino, Mrs. Edgar Loug, Mr. Sidney Steinbridge, and Mr. Olan Banks. Two large choruses will sing "Dixie" and Lollie Belle Wyhe's "Georgia," the state official song adopted by the General Assembly in 1922.

De Koven's "Oh Promise Me" will be sung by Mrs. Long with the organ accompaniment; and Edmund Vittum's (words) "Sunlit Georgia" will be sung by Mrs. Longino with violin accompaniment played by Miss Horsbrugh. Macarthy's "The Bonnie Blue Flag" will be sung by four voice students—Hilda Hamlett, Ruth Wilson, Emily Cowart, and Margaret Wenzell—in Act III, which features the secession convention. "A Frog He Would A-Wooing Go," an old English folk song, is to be sung by Sue Mansfield and Margaret Wenzell in the wild life scene, in which Miss Theresa Pyle, impersonating the Birds of the Forest, will whistle a solo. Snatches of "Georgia Land," composed and written by Nelle Womack Hines, will be sung by the Mad Genius, the main character of the drama, who is a musician as well as a sculptor, painter and dramatist, in various places throughout the drama.

Mrs. Hines has also composed both music and words of a special song for the Liberty Boys' Scenes. Mrs. Willes Homer Allen will preside at the piano, and Miss Maggie Jenkins at the organ, while Miss Marie Garrett will play for the dances.

Another pleasing feature of the celebration will be the music of the orchestra under the direction of Miss Beatrice Horsbrugh. The orchestra with trumpeters and the fairs open the performance, the first giving the motif of the evening's celebration by rendering Edward Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," strains of which will be used elsewhere in the drama. Miss Jenkins will accompany them on the organ and Miss Ruth Hill on the piano. A quartette of violins composed of Miss Horsbrugh, Miss Pyle, Ella Dailey, and Natalie Purdon will play for the masked ball of the gay 'nineties. McDowell's "Bre'r Rabbit" for the wild life scene, and "The Old Mole" between Acts III and IV.

Former Member of Faculty At Chapel

Mrs. Nan Blacksdale Miller, of Dresden, Ohio, a former student and member of the faculty of G. S. C. W. was a visitor at the chapel exercises Friday morning.

Mrs. Miller stated that she saw the corner stone laid for the first building on the campus. In her opinion this college has done much for Georgia and Georgia education.

In her talk she urged that the South made use of her natural resources and develop them to such an extent that they will be even more valuable. She told of finding a pottery plant in Ohio that used ninety per cent of Georgia clay in its work. Another interesting fact was that a town in this same state purchased all its nuts from Georgia producers.

In conclusion Mrs. Miller told the students that there would always be problems for them to meet. She urged that they prepare themselves to meet these problems amicably.

Unique Musical Program Planned

VOICE AND VARIOUS INSTRUMENTS TO BE HEARD IN JANUARY 30 PAGEANT

"A Trip Around the World in Music" is planned by the music department as the theme of a musical pageant to be given by the students of that department in the Richard B. Russell auditorium, Monday evening, January 30, at 8 o'clock.

The program will include the most important countries of the world with representative music of each, presented in pageant form, including voice, piano, violin, organ and orchestra. The atmosphere of each country will be created with colorful costumes, flags, and dances given by some of the girls from the physical education department.

The pageant was arranged by Miss Fannie Virginia McClure, and is being directed by Miss Alice Lenore Tucker. Miss Marggie Jenkins will be at the organ, Miss Horsbrugh will direct the orchestra, and Mrs. Allen will be accompanist. Mrs. Hines is in charge of the costuming and staging assisted by Dr. Webber as stage manager.

Exam Tea To Be Given By Y. W. C. A.

The examination tea given by the Y. W. C. A. will be Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. Every member of the student body and faculty is cordially invited.

The orchestra is composed of Miss Horsbrugh, conductor, Miss Pyle, concert master, Ruth Hill, pianist, and Dorothy Shackelford, Evelyn Bobo, Elizabeth Wells, Caroline Wilder, Ella Dailey, Elizabeth Hill, Melba Holland, Natalie Purdon, Jane Cowan, Evie Nichols and Mabel Brophy.

Many Attend Big Educational Meet

PROBLEMS OF FUTURE YEARS DISCUSSED BY LEADING EDUCATORS OF THE SOUTH

ATLANTA, Ga. — Assembling 200 students and faculty members from both white and negro colleges from all parts of the South, the Southern Student-Faculty Conference met in Atlanta recently. This marked the first occasion when white and colored students planned and conducted such a meeting for the consideration of mutual problems of both local and international import, the theme being, "The Responsibility of the Forces of Religion in Building the South of Tomorrow."

Opening the conference with a critique of the present situation in the South, Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory University, called attention to the process of rapid change in which the South now finds itself.

"The southern part of our country is decidedly the most sectionally minded—possibly because we all love the South so dearly," said Dr. Smart. We still think of Southern culture in terms of civilization before the Civil War. We are still too inclined to think of any divergence from our grandparents' ways as a colossal crime.

We have a hostility toward Wall Street. We are hostile to change. We have a blind worship of a fixed static social condition," he continued.

"Another serious ailment of the South is her tremendous loss of leadership in the last two generations. Our tendency today to worship a past civilization has held us down and kept us from having leadership that we should have had."

Dr. Malcolm H. Bryan, associate professor of economics at the University of Georgia, addressed the conference on the second day. Referring frequently to the recent findings of the technocrats, Dr. Bryan stated that if the present capitalistic system is to survive, radical changes must be made in its organization, including a stabilization of the price level, the introduction of social insurance, redistribution of wealth and abolition of recurring periods of depression and their resulting unemployment.

President H. A. Hunt, of Fort Valley Normal and Industrial School, spoke at the conference on educational conditions in the South as compared with other parts of the country.

Dr. W. W. Alexander of the commission on interracial cooperation described the part played in the pre-war and in the post-war period by the seventy per cent of the white population who were non-slave holding.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, Washington, D. C., closed the conference with an address on "The South of Tomorrow."

The conference was planned and directed by student and faculty representatives of the white and colored Christian Associations; Professor Raymond Paty of Emory University served as chairman of the executive committee.

Spring Term At G. S. C. W. Will Begin Friday Morning

Doctors' Academy Meeting Is Held

The Milledgeville Doctors' Academy met Wednesday evening, January 18, at the home of Dean and Mrs. W. T. Wynn. Dr. Francis Daniels presided and appointed committees for the coming year.

Dr. Sally, speaker of the evening, read a paper on "Nineteenth Century Treatment of 'La Judia de Toledo' Theme." He followed briefly the history of this old Spanish legend about Alfonso VIII and his love for a beautiful Jewess, from its chronicle days up to its form in the nineteenth century, when Eusebio Asquerno dramatized it in a form considerably changed from the original plot.

After this interesting talk, the meeting was thrown open for discussion and the members of the Academy indulged in reminiscences.

Milledgeville To Be Pictured In Big New York Daily

Pictures of old and new Milledgeville have been recently sent to the New York Times by Mrs. J. L. Beeson. The Times is to have a sixty page section in celebration of Georgia's Bi-centennial. Besides pictures of historic interest, the paper will contain a comprehensive history of the history of the state of Georgia.

Among the group pictures sent were: The Mansion, the Ina Dillard Russell Library, the old capitol building, a picture showing the burning of the old penitentiary, Allen's Invalid home, Thalian Hall of old Oglethorpe University, and many others.

Unusual Feature In Corinthian

The second issue of this year's Corinthian will come from the press the latter part of this week. The magazine is expected to contain much interesting and original material.

One important item will be the two book reports. "One Way to Heaven," by Countee Cullen, a negro, is reviewed by Miriam Laniel; and "Peter Ashley" is reviewed by Eulalie McDowell.

An added feature will be two silhouettes by Virginia Moore. Miss Moore shows remarkable talent in artistic lines.

Under the head of poetry comes "Hills," by Olive Jordan and "Life Is Strange," by Polly Reynolds, one of the Corinthian contest prize winners.

Elizabeth T. Smith, also a prize winner, contributes a clever article, "On Heaven." Marjorie Ennis submits a sketch, "The Angels Are Weeping." "Fate," a short story, was written by Helen Ennis.

Dorothy Lipham, who was last year's editor of the Corinthian, contributes "White Cloth" for the alumnae section. Wilma Proctor and Frances Profumo have a part in the issue, as well as other talented contributors.

Thursday of This Week Will Be Last Day of First Semester

The old semester will end January 26. With it, will end the turmoil of examinations, notebooks, the main concern of faculty and term papers that have been students since last week. And G. S. C. W. will bid good bye to a number of her students who are finishing in January. Others are leaving to come back later and complete their work.

As usual there will be a new supply of students entering in the mid-year. A large number of applicants have already enrolled for spring term. Some of these girls are newcomers; others are former students of the college. To all the college extends a hearty welcome.

There are resolutions to study harder and more thoroughly going around the campus. The future will tell how many of these preparations for better study will be kept. Or perhaps truthful resolves will be a better source of information.

The past semester has marked the erecting of the library and the changing of various rules of the college. It has seen many a distinguished visitor upon the campus and many a welcome speaker at chapel. The spring semester must aim high if it is to equal the fall term of 1932-1933.

Extension Offers Number of Courses

Students In Many Sections of Country Taking Advantage of Growing Department.

During the less than a year since its organization in July, 1932, the Extension Department of G. S. C. W. has grown until it now offers over a hundred courses. The extension students range from Washington, D. C., on the east to New Mexico on the west, and are found in nearly all of the Southern states.

Courses are now offered by practically every department of the college, either by correspondence or at study centers. The department is under the direction of Dr. George Harris Webber.

It is an interesting fact that a number of the students who have been taking extension work this fall are coming on the campus for next semester.

Health Talk Made By Mrs. Wootten

Mrs. Henry Stewart Wootten, head of the health department at G. S. C. W. talked on health habits at the home economics club meeting Saturday night. She stressed the importance of forming good habits and developing a pleasant speaking voice. Then Nancy Prior gave an interesting report of the White House Conference on Housing.

Lucy Martin, president of the club, who is graduating in February presented her letter of resignation and appointed a nominating committee to suggest officers to fill the vacancies.

The Colonnade

Published Weekly By Students of The
GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
Corner Hancock and Clark Sts.
Milledgeville, Ga.

"Entered as second-class matter October
30, 1928, at the post office Milledgeville,
Ga., under the Act of March 3, 1879."

SUBSCRIPTION RATE
$1.00 Per Year

EDITORIAL STAFF

Editor-in-Chief.....Virginia Hale
Managing Editor.....Claudia Keith
News Editor.....Alice Helm
Associate Editor.....Jennifer Stevens

Reporters—
Helen Ennis, Frances Holsenbeck, Pauline
Reynolds, Virginia Tanner, Mary
Louise Dunn.

Y. W. C. A. Editor.....Eulalie McDowell
Alumnae Editor.....Lavonia Newman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager.....Marjorie Ennis
Typists—
Beatrice Johnston, Patty Sommerour,
Elizabeth Wakeford

Exchange Editor.....Dorothy Maddox
Advertising Manager.....Harriet Trapnell
Advertising Assistant.....Irene Farren
Proof Readers.....Mary Newby, Vivian Yates
Circulation Manager.....Sue Mansfield
Circulation Assistant—
Margaret Wenzel, Althea Smith, Anna
O'Leary, Grace Paulk, Martha Sherwood, Ruth O'Kelly, Edwina Perry.

Your Paper

With the beginning of the new semester, the Colonnade, too, starts a fresh term, and subscriptions for the second half of the year are now in order. The school paper could not exist without subscribers; and, for several reasons, the students could not get along nearly so well without the Colonnade.

The paper is fundamentally a student publication, and serves as a unifying force among the members of the student body. Its importance lies not so much in the actual news value to students, although there is always a great deal of fresh information, as it does in the fact that it makes possible the spreading of student ideas and fosters a better understanding.

The Colonnade is an excellent advertisement, both for the college as a whole and for the individuals whose names appear in its columns. It lets other schools and other people know exactly who is what on the campus.

The fact that the students enjoy the paper is apparent from the eagerness with which it is greeted each week and the disappointment of any girl who fails to get her copy. As has been announced, only a limited number of copies will be printed next semester, and a certain percentage of these will have to be set to advertisers and exchanges. If you want a copy, get your subscription in early.

The Colonnade needs your support, and you need the Colonnade.

Procrastination

Shakespeare says that "Security is mortals' chiefest enemy," but if security is the chiefest enemy, procrastination is the next chiefest enemy, referring this time to notebooks and term papers.

The teacher assigns on the first day, a list of work to be done for the course. This list sounds rather formidable and entirely too much so to disturb our first days of rest in the new semester, especially since our harried brains haven't fully recuperated from the strain of examinations. Hence, our list of references are swallowed in the little black note book to lie undisturbed till spring. And in the meantime, we revel in the joys of the unemployed.

The last days of the new semester dawn amid depressing gray clouds, and incidentally, notebooks sadly in need of something inside, and heads suffering from a similar ailment. Then the work begins! Notebooks are completed in one night and an even greater miracle is performed on term papers. And exams are masterpieces of what can be accomplished in one night with the result of cramming a total blank when ten unheard-of exam questions are written on the board.

Moral: Procrastination is Pernicious.

The Curse Of Active Ignorance

Goethe said, "There is nothing more terrible than active ignorance." It is this element in society which is hampering the progress of civilization today.

Ignorance of social values, ignorance of prevailing conditions, ignorance of underlying causes, and ignorance of actual scientific facts are the things which, when allowed to seep into our leadership and to spread and multiply, relentlessly undermine the highest ideals and principles of any social structure.

Superstition appears ridiculous in the light of the scientific knowledge of today, yet it is apparently an inevitable component of the human make-up. It takes its place in our medicine, our religion, our business; and the most regrettable fact is that it is active, spreading from one generation to another, from one people to another.

Ignorant, unthinking leadership is the cause of the greater number of the blunders of the human race. Humanity is wont to blindly follow its chosen leader, no matter how uninformed or how radical he may be.

It is the task of every intelligent, educated citizen to help to quell this foe of society. Ignorance will probably never be entirely wiped out, but at least we can discourage its spread, lessen its activity and refuse it a place of leadership.

Opportunity!

The new semester beginning next week, offers a new chance for every girl on the campus to do what she will. It is her opportunity to grow or to shrivel intellectually, and spiritually. Resolutions which were made New Year's Eve are by now slightly warped, and the new semester affords a time for splinting them.

Many of the girls who are in college today are there through a sacrifice on the part of their parents, but that sacrifice is a willing one and a noble one if those girls make the sacrifice worthwhile. One man when asked what his son was planning to do after graduation incidentally, but how proudly, brought out his son's report card that he had received that day. The class ranking of his son was marked "First." That man was justifiably proud; what he added was that "the report made paying the bills easier." Some parents do not feel that they are getting their money's worth in us. Grades are not everything; they are only a minor thing. Studying isn't, or should not, be done to receive grades. The girl who has foresight looks to the future and recognizes a need for study as a preparation for other experiences.

The new semester offers each day a new day. What will you do with your time?

Queer Argument

A proposal that the route of Sherman's march from Atlanta to the sea be marked has stirred up such a hornet's nest of opposition that it is hard to believe the Civil War has been over for more than half a century.

Voicing the argument which is being used by most of the super-Southern-patriots against such marking, the Savannah Evening Press says in an editorial that the route should not be marked because Sherman's march was characterized by rapine and thunder.

We are ready to admit that Sherman's movements to the sea left a path of death and destruction in a land for which we have a sincere, an abiding love, but whatever breadth of mind we may lay claim to does not permit us to reason that because Sherman's march was destructive then it was not of sufficient historical importance, compared with other events of history which have been much more ostentatiously marked, to warrant its being perpetuated in history by some physical marker.

The march of Sherman from Atlanta to the Atlantic ocean is very definitely an important part of the history and lore of the Civil War period in the South. It is a part of the actual history and is equally a part of the tradition and legend. Southern patriots use the mere mention of it to stir again the bitter cup of anguish out of which, peculiarly enough, rises the beautiful image and recollection of all that was fine and elegant about life in the Old South. Though the memory of Sherman's stamping march through Georgia might still boil the blood of the remaining patriarchs of the Old South, it must be remembered that the train of thought and the connotation started off by mention of that famous march inevitably includes much of the beautiful legend and lore of happier times in Georgia.

Southern patriots, who are sincerely doing their utmost to preserve the best traditions of a mode and manner of civilization that has never been excelled for elegance or ease, would do well to remember that a consciousness of a common heritage can best be created by knowledge of common dangers, losses and defeats. Can it be thought for a moment that the French, who are a fine example of a patriotic people, will not remember the losses were heavy and because the countryside there was turned into a picture of desolation?

There is a question in our minds now as to the propriety of marking the route of Sherman's march to the sea. But it is a question of economy and not of patriotism. It seems paradoxical that people would build monuments and markers when their neighbors are hungry and penniless. But that is the only reason we can see why Sherman's route to the sea should not warrant being marked as much as any other route of great historical interest.—Cobb County Times.

Russia's Five-Year Plan

Soviet Russia's five-year plan for economic construction has ended with only partial achievement of its aims. In the viewpoint of Soviet leaders the plan has been successfully carried out in the attainment of its broad general aim of establishing a base for industrialization of the country.

However, a comparison of the latest available figures for accomplishment shows that the industrial plan as a whole has not been fulfilled.

As a result of the five-year plan it is claimed that the country now has a foundation of heavy industry, on which can be built future means of production without relying on foreign imports.—The Milledgeville Times.

Campus Crusts

To think that we should come to this! Woe is the faculty and woe is the student body, as Hamlet's girl friend would say. And now that we are in the turmoil of cramming, what will be the outcome? Or will there be such?

Rumors assert that M. Powers and a member of the Mercer Glee club formerly broken asunder are now romantically joined. No doubt the performance was all that it was intended to be and then some. "Ray for romance! Or maybe the rumor is knifed!"

Wonder if Jack Dawson, serious blond crooner of the M. G. C. gets very much fun mail? Also, wonder how many of our outstanding students resisted temptation to fan. Personally, we think he should ought to get a drag from the record producing company seeing as how business has picked up on the sale of "Air So to Bed." Let's ax him!

Tale of Horror
We awakened one late night about the midst of it and saw amongst the wall a beam of light. It came; it went; it shone; it unshone. In fact, it palpitated between dark 'n' light.

"Booglers!" We gasped gaspingly and dived footward below the coverlets habitating our couch.

Six years later suddenly overcome with unquenchable bravery, we peeped out from under said antique coverlets, for nary a boogler had appeared (with gusto). Cautiously, we perched our nose upon the threshold of the window sill and peered out into the night. "Where is my old standby, Hawshaw?" I queried. No response came to my waiting ears so with ever increasing bravery, we peered even farther.

At last our efforts were rewarded. In the clime abode, a light swung to and fro, fro and to casting the inconstant light amongst our wall. Nary a boogler, only a bulb.

Have you noticed any signs of approaching age in V. Murray? She is now an aunt and what an aunt. We suggest that she become a faculty adviser. Self-expression is an outlet of unusual worth and that's what aunt's should have.

Will all students, pupils and whatnots please omit "Wait a minute" from your classroom vocabulary. Tain't right. What will the neighbors think? Consider the response when you are the stimulus.

Consciencelessly yours,
MERRY MOUDDE.

Ennis Hall Group Enjoy Short Hike

A delightful hike to Nisbet woods was enjoyed by a group of Ennis Hall girls on Saturday afternoon. Creamed beef on toast, coffee, and potato chips formed the menu for the afternoon.

Those enjoying the hike were: Florence Camp, Esther Grantham, Eva Mathews, Vera Spell, Martha Phillips, Virginia Hale, Ruth O'Kelly, Elizabeth Wakeford, and Mary Lillian Murphey, Billy Jennings.

G. S. C. W. FOR THE ALUMNAE

THE ALUMNAE FOR G. S. C. W.

Activities of G. S. C. W. Students During Holidays

The following clipping from the Columbus Georgia Enquirer-Sun tells the activities of some of the G. S. C. W. students during the Christmas vacation:

"G. S. C. W. Students Hosts at Luncheon at Cricket Thursday
One of the delightful affairs of the Christmas holidays was the G. S. C. W. luncheon given in the private dining room at the Cricket on Thursday. The tables were beautifully decorated with Christmas tapers and sprays of holly.

Students of the Georgia State College had planned various entertainments for each county over the state. There was an attempt made to get in touch with all students and alumnae, by publicity and personal calls, as there is much interest manifested in beginning a club here.

Among those present were: Miss Sally Watson, Miss Lillie Patterson, Miss Margaret Clark, Miss Edna DeLamar, Miss Elizabeth Bell, Miss Elizabeth Treadway, Miss Francis Profumo, Miss Eloise Kaufman, Miss Pat Jordan, Miss Bootsie Grider, Miss Ruth Crowder, Miss Fae Scott, Miss Sara Hanner, Miss Mildred Wells, Miss Margaret Coan, Miss Frances Simmons, Miss Dorothy Colquitt, Miss Miriam Denison, Miss Alice Mae Wright, Miss Erma Jean Allen, Miss Helen Johnson, Mrs. Nora Davis, Picher, Miss Mary Lyle Davis, Miss Claire Johnson, Miss Margaret Haywood, Miss Dorothy Armour, Miss Catherine Allen, Miss Caroline Doub-ely, Miss Gertrude Rainey, Miss Emily Renfro, Miss Flora Nelson, Miss Sarah Joe Murray."

There is also this clipping from the Griffin Georgia News: Griffin Club of G. S. C. W. Entertains Alumnae at Delightful Tea On Friday, At Which Time Alumnae Club Is Organized

The Griffin Club of G. S. C. W. entertained at a delightful seated tea Friday afternoon, at the lovely home of Miss Emma Bealor Walker on the Jackson road.

"The house was brightly decorated throughout with gay Christmas decorations attractively arranged at various intervals.

Acting as joint hostesses at the event were: Misses Betty Gaisert, Elizabeth Moore, Catherine Digby, Margaret Rucker, Emma Bealor Walker, and Dorothy Maddox.

Receiving the guests at the front door were: Miss Walker, who was lovely in a becoming gown of tan figured chiffon, and Miss Dorothy Maddox, who was stunning in brown crepe with a collar of white angel cloth.

Delicious refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cakes, coffee, fruit cake and salted nuts were served.

During the afternoon a G. S. C. W. Alumnae club was formed with the following officers elected to serve: Miss Franklin Sibley, president; Miss Ethel Goode, vice president; Miss Martha Hammond, secretary and treasurer.

Committees were also named and are as follows: constitution committee: Martha Weaver and Winnie Mitchell; membership committee, Mrs. Harry Hood, Miss Frances Moore, and Miss Althea Cumming; program committee, Miss Ethel Goode, Miss Helen Elder, Miss Louise Ellis, and Miss Sara Beck; and social committee, Miss Nell English, Miss Sara Patrick, Mr. Harold Griffin, and Miss Margaret Henderson.

Miss Catherine Weaver, chairman of the alumnae in this district explained the papers of the alumnae club.

Members present at this interesting meeting and delightful tea were: Mrs. Mitchell Walker, Mrs. Franklin Sibley, Miss Ethel Goode, Miss Martha Hammond, Mrs. Harold Griffin, Miss Louise Ellis, Miss Martha Weaver, Miss Catherine Weaver, Miss Julia Bolton, Miss Ruby Bolton, Miss Nora Patrick, Miss Nora Ethel English, Miss Nell English, Miss Louise Ellis, Miss Sara Beck, Miss Helen Elder, Miss Winnie Mitchell, Miss Harriett Berry, Miss Josephine Pritchett, and Miss Margaret Henderson.

Visitors welcomed were: Miss Bertha Hopkins, of Havana, Cuba, guest of Mrs. Theo Manley; and Mrs. Sasser, of Bowdon."

Juniors, Seniors See College Play

Juniors and seniors of the college attended the play, "Molly's Idea," sponsored at G. M. C. Friday night by the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary. A splendid performance was given by a local cast.

Mr. Charlie Morris Speaks To Y. W. C. A.

Mr. Charlie Morris, who did relief work in Russia in 1921, 1922, and 1923, spoke to the members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet last Monday afternoon in the "Y" room.

Mr. Morris based his discussion on his experiences while working in the famine stricken area. He gave his viewpoint on conditions in Russia and spoke of the failure of "pure Communism."

On the student life he said, "I know little about the schools except the University of Moscow. The students are appointed by the government to homes out in town. Living conditions are terrible. In fact, they are unconceivable."

Granddaughters To Be Complimented

The faculty Alumnae will entertain the College Granddaughters on Saturday, January 28, from 4 to 6 P. M. in terrace recreation hall.

At that time a Granddaughters Club will be organized. There are about 70 granddaughters on the campus. It is hoped that each one will be at the party.

The main feature of the afternoon will be a candy pulling. The Faculty Alumnae hope to get photographs of girls in the uniforms their mothers used to wear.

NEW CATALOGUE IS BEING ISSUED

A new catalogue for the Georgia State College for Women is now in preparation. The executive committee has been working on the old catalogue for some time, having it revised and rewritten. If plans work out, the new edition will go to press sometime in May, and will be ready before next year.

Through the Week With the

The "Y" extends to every member of the student body a cordial invitation to be present at a tea which the "Y" will give next Thursday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock.

There will be an orchestra, skits and other entertaining features at the tea and the "Y" sincerely hopes that the student body will come and be merry together after a siege of exams.

Activity council, that new and active organization on our campus, had its beginning in September. The actual work of organizing the association was not done until October. Activity council was conceived with the main aim "to promote wholesome activity through service with Christ as an example."

After, however, the organization began to function, a few specific aims were incorporated into that one major aim. The council decided to establish clubs for the students to promote and create individual happiness and self-expression. It also endeavored to assist in the decoration and equipment of the new "rec" hall. Towards this end they have been able, so far, to contribute the amount of $6.75. This money was realized from a dance which the council gave in the Rec hall not long ago.

In an effort to further the purpose which they have chosen, Activity council has brought to its members two good speakers. Dr. Harris of the Presbyterian church and Polly Moss were speakers at two of the meetings.

A questionnaire has also been given to each member. On this questionnaire every one is given an opportunity to make any suggestion as to beneficial changes in the activities of the council or to suggest any program which would be of interest to the members.

Activity council is unquestionably attempting to get to the root of each girl's interests. It is trying to make an individual thing of mass operation. It hopes to reach each girl and in turn give each girl an opportunity to reach them.

It is the one organization on the campus which had its beginning after a discussion of what the girls on the G. S. C. W. campus needed. It is purely local, with no interests except local interests.

The title of an editorial in The Tulane Hullahaloo was "Technocracy's Limits." From what we hear technocracy hasn't got any limits.

Colonnade Staff Members Honored

Virginia Hale, who for the past semester has been editor of the Colonnade, and Ruth O'Kelly, circulation assistant, will be honored guests at a party given by the Colonnade staff at the Cabin in Nesbit's Woods Thursday night.

Virginia and Ruth will leave for their respective homes in Fitzgerald and Cairo on Friday after completing their work. Both have been enthusiastic supporters and workers on the Colonnade.

Our Exchange Column

Chemically speaking.
Element: Man.

Occurrences: In great clusters about stunning members of the female sex. Scattered thinly elsewhere. Seldom in free state, yet avoids the toils of combined state until smitten and captured.

Physical properties: All shapes and sizes, of a standardized color—may sometimes be discolored by lipstick markings. Freezes very slowly, if at all. Practically useless if hit by D. Cupid. Must be carefully handled to get best results. Turns sour if given the air.

Chemical properties: When stimulated earns reputation of being fast. Given to venting great volume of hot air. Is nonflammable but will support the combustion of cigarettes and cigars. Stomach of cast iron; able to swallow fluence of such drinks as becomes a tenor prone to singing such as Sweet Adeline. Conglomerates into glorified seragios known as fraternities. Green with ignorance, often blue in spirits, rarely yellow in backbone, black in the face when displeased, referred to as being a white fellow, and turns to Walter Winchell vermillion when surprised by the chaperone.—The Florida Flambeau.

Emory has planned to have a French village on the campus this summer. Class work and recreation will be apart from other students and their conversation will be entirely in the French language.—The Emory Wheel.

"Atlanta's Most Perfect Young Man" is a student at Emory. And will he get a rush from the feminine enrollment!

At the University of Rochester, all the graduates of the class of 1932 who have been unable to secure employment, will be allowed to return to the institution and study for their master or doctor's degree. Can you imagine it?—The Carolinian.

Tech's class cut system is in effect for the honor students. It must be great.—The Technique.

Six hundred and fifty-eight dances were held on and off the campus of the Ohio State University last year by campus organizations. What a place.—The Tulane Hullahaloo.

The title of an editorial in The Tulane Hullahaloo was "Technocracy's Limits." From what we hear technocracy hasn't got any limits.

Virginia Hale, who for the past semester has been editor of the Colonnade, and Ruth O'Kelly, circulation assistant, will be honored guests at a party given by the Colonnade staff at the Cabin in Nesbit's Woods Thursday night.

Virginia and Ruth will leave for their respective homes in Fitzgerald and Cairo on Friday after completing their work. Both have been enthusiastic supporters and workers on the Colonnade.

Almost every girl has some pet or toy. Some bring to school with them the dolls which they have played with from childhood, but have never outgrown. Others make collections of dogs, rabbits, cats, giraffes, elephants and other animals. There are twenty-seven in one collection of donkeys.

Congratulations and Best Wishes

There are ways and ways of doing things and being things but there are only a few ways of doing things and remain in the right. Virginia Hale seems to have discovered the key to being a good editor and putting out a good paper.

In the short time in which she has had the Colonnade in charge, there have been fewer complaints than ever before. The paper has been on a smoother running basis, there has been more and better cooperation in the staff, and there has been more genuine interest manifested than has been shown in many years of the Colonnade's existence. Another instance which cannot be overlooked in reviewing the Colonnade situation of the past four months is the fact that the financial condition of the paper, under the direction of Virginia, is better than was ever thought possible for a paper operated on such a basis as the Colonnade.

The staff will miss Virginia when she leaves. She is taking with her the very best wishes of everyone.
E. Mc.

Marathon Dance By Junior Class

The junior class gave a novel entertainment Saturday evening, January 14, in the Ennis Recreation Hall, in the form of a Marathon Dance. Music was furnished for the dancing by Marie Garrett.

Special numbers included a reading by Wilma Proctor entitled "By the Rule of Contrary," and several vocal selections by Blanche Holbrook.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY IS ENJOYED

Miss Olive Salter was honored with a surprise birthday feast Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. The guests were Jessie Morgan, Virginia Newsome, Adalee Burrow, Margaret Frierson, and Wilma Proctor.

ANYWAY, SOME GIRLS FANCY QUEER TYPES OF LITTLE ANIMALS

It has been said that "girls are queer animals"—they bring queer animals to school with them, at any rate, judging from the collections of curiosities to be found in the rooms of some of the G. S. C. W. girls.

Here such creepy animals as turtles and lizards cease to be shunned, and become the cherished companions of some of the students. One girl even has a horned toad which she brought all the way from Texas this summer, and which now occupies a prominent position in his mistress's room.

Almost every girl has some pet or toy. Some bring to school with them the dolls which they have played with from childhood, but have never outgrown. Others make collections of dogs, rabbits, cats, giraffes, elephants and other animals. There are twenty-seven in one collection of donkeys.

Poets and Poetry Of Georgia

WILLIAM T. WYNN

Professor of English, G. S. C. W., Milledgeville, Ga.
(A SYLLABUS FOR STUDY IN GEORGIA HIGH SCHOOLS)

EDITOR'S NOTE: We are glad to publish in this issue of the Colonade a copy of an article that recently appeared in the High School Quarterly, official organ of the Southern Commission on Accredited Schools and Colleges. "Poets and Poetry of Georgia," by Dr. W. T. Wynn.

Georgia literature came into being when John and Charles Wesley began to produce those matchless hymns now sung by every Christian congregation on this globe. "Jesus Lover of My Soul," followed by 6,499 other stirring melodies set the pace for those who have followed with songs and poems written on Georgia soil.

After the Wesley brothers the citizens of this state did little to keep the poetic fires burning until the coming of Richard Henry Wilde with his book of poems including "My Life Is Like a Summer Rose," and Thomas Holley Chivers with his wonderful volume "The Lost Pleiad." They both produced most of their writings during the first half of the nineteenth century.

Since Mr. Wilde's death in Louisiana, in 1847, and that of Dr. Chivers in Decatur, in 1858, efforts have been made to revive interest in their writings; however, not much has yet been accomplished. For more than 30 years Dr. Chivers was considered the lost poet of Georgia. While he lived, many times the community regarded him as a liability rather than an asset, and after his death people seemed willing to forget even his bitter controversy with Poe.

A little later, according to the calendar, came Francis Orray Ticknor, the big-hearted, noble physician, who practiced medicine from Torch Hill near Columbus for the good of humanity and wrote poems for his pleasure to the delight and edification of his friends. "Little Griffin of Tennessee" will be read and appreciated as long as humanity lives and loves.

Paul Hamilton Hayne should perhaps be mentioned next. Had Hayne been a product of literature-loving New England or even lived in the South during her more prosperous years, perhaps he would have been hailed as a Wordsworth or a greater than Longfellow. Alas, from 1850 to 1880 he had little to encourage him and much to crush his noble soul. His "Aspects of the Pines" and "A Little While I Pain Would Linger Yet" are good examples of his best nature poems and a most pathetic glimpse at his sad life.

After Hayne comes the South's sweetest spirit, the immortal Lanier. At the close of fifteen years of suffering his body died and his soul continued to live with God; yet the sweetness of his life and the perfection of his writings live on and on in the hearts of men and women everywhere. Perhaps no mood or sentiment has inspired more people to noble living than—

"As the marsh hen secretly builds on the watery sod, Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God."

Since the days of Lanier there has been an intermittent flow of poetry from those who claimed this state as their own.

Robert Loveman won national fame by his inimitable "Rain Song;" Frank L. Stanton delighted both children and grown-ups with such gems as "Mighty Like a Rose," and "Just A-Wearyin' for

You;" and no poet of this state wrote so long and so loving of Georgia as did Charles William Hubner. During the ninety-three years of usefulness he literally loved this section into many attempts to great literature.

After these come the long array of poets whose number runs into scores: Conrad Aiken, Daniel Garnett Bickens, Agnes Kendrick, Gray, Daniel Whitehead Hickey, Anderson M. Scruggs, Earnest Neal, Mary Brent Whiteside, and on and on.

From hundreds of names of men and women of the state, who have produced poems, thirty were selected—fifteen living and fifteen dead.

Others equally interesting very likely will come to the minds of students.

The names with a brief fact or two about each poet should prove helpful as a starting point for further study.

Living Poets

Conrad Aiken (1889), Cambridge, Mass. Poet, critic. Probably most prolific of the later Georgia poets. "Proa and the Fool, and other Georgia Poems." Daniel Garnett Bickens (1873), poet laureate, Georgia Press Association, Managing Editor of Savannah Morning News. "Just A-verse A-Day." Agnes Cochran Bramblett, Forsyth, "Legend of the Weaver of Paradise." Harry Willwell Edwards (1855), lives at Holly Bluff near Macon, versatile writer of poems and stories. Daniel Whitehead Hickey (1902), Atlanta, poet business man, "Bright Harbor." Nelle Womack Hines, Milledgeville, teacher, writer, club woman, "Home Keeping Hearts." Thornwell Jacobs (1877), Oglethorpe University, college president, lecturer, poet, "Islands of the Blest." Agnes Kendrick Gray, Atlanta, poet, lecturer, "River Dust." Wrightman F. Melton (1867), Atlanta, editor of Verse-craft, Professor of English for a long term of years. Roselle Mercier Montgomery, Riverside, Conn., "Lee on Stone Mountain, and Ulysses Returns." Minnie Hite Moody, Atlanta, vice president of Atlanta Writers' Club. Earnest Neal (1859), Calhoun, poet, reader, teacher, poet laureate of the state of legislative enactment, "Yonah and Other Poems." Anderson M. Scruggs, president of the Atlanta Writers' Club, Professor at Atlanta Dental College, "Dawn, Noon and Night," "Re-compense," "Toilers." J. E. Scruggs, Atlanta, writer for National Magazines. Mary Bren Whiteside, Atlanta, teacher, editor, "The Eternal Quest and other Poems."

Poets Who Have Died

Thomas Holley Chivers (1807-1858), lived in Decatur and in Wilkes county; physician, writer—style similar to Poe's—"The Lost Pleiad." Mary McKinley Cobb (1844-1927), lived in Athens, "Swallow Flights." Montgomery

M. Folsom (1857-1893), lived in Atlanta, "Old St. Augustine and her Poems." Paul Hamilton Hayne (1830-1886), lived near Augusta was excelled only by Lanier. His nature poems have by many been called the equal of those of Wordsworth, "Legends and Lyrics." William Hamilton Hayne (1856-1920) son of Paul Hamilton Hayne, lived near Augusta, "Sylvan Lyrics." Earnest Liartsock 1903-1930, lived in Atlanta, teacher, poet, "Strange Splendor." Charles William Hubner (1835-1929), lived in Atlanta, was poet laureate of the South, "Poems of Faith and Consolation." Henry Rootes Jackson (1820-1898), lawyer and writer, "Tallulah and Other Poems;" "Red Old Hills of Georgia" has immortalized the state. Other states have red hills, but not the "red hills" of Georgia. Sidney Lanier (1842-1881), lived in Macon, musician, lecturer, poet, one of the three greatest poets of America, "The Marshes of Glynn." Robert Loveman (1864-1923), lived in Dalton, loved children, "The Rain Song." Frank Lebby Stanton (1857-1927), lived in Atlanta, human interest poems, former poet laureate, "Up From Georgia." Richard Henry Wilde (1789-1847), lawyer, writer, "My Life Is Like a Summer Rose." Francis Orray Ticknor (1822-1874), physician near Columbus, "Torch Hill," "Little Giffen of Tennessee." John and Charles Wesley, earliest poets of Georgia, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" was probably the first poem written on Georgia soil. Charles was the most prolific hymn writer the world has known. The two brothers wrote more than 6,500 hymns.

Mrs. Meadows At Artists Meeting

Mrs. T. B. Meadows, associate professor of art at G. S. C. W., spent last week-end in Atlanta to attend the pre-view of the exhibit at the High Museum of the Association of Georgia artists. The exhibit was held on Saturday, December 14, at 3 P. M. Mrs. Meadows is a member of the G. A. A. and met many of the other artists of the state while she was in Atlanta.

Sixty-seven paintings were exhibited by members, most of them being done in a modernistic manner. Mrs. Meadows reports that the first paintings upon which bids were placed, however, are done with the more conventional tone.

Miss Lucy Martin of Rome, Ga., has recently been elected to fill the place of Miss Hazel Bivins as teacher of vocational home economics in the eighth and ninth grades in Peabody high school.

Get your Kodak out!

Count on us for
Kodak Film --
Expert Finishing

WILLIAMS & RITCHIE
MILLEDGEVILLE, GA.

FRESH AIR FRUIT STAND

Oranges, Apples, Tangerines
Bananas
AT LOW PRICES

Get It At

FRALEY'S

MARKED DOWN

Our entire stock of

ELECTRIC LAMPS,
FANCY CHINA,
FANCY GLASS
WARE

All Novelties have been marked down. Now is your chance for bargains.

R. H. WOOTTEN

PICTURES TAKEN FOR SPECTRUM

The sports pictures for the Spectrum are being taken this week. Other sections of the annual are progressing steadily and the prospects for an excellent edition are bright. The staff will be glad to have "freak" pictures and material for the feature pages of the book.

Economic and Sociology Courses
Available By Mail; Details
Outlined

The Department of Economics and Sociology of the Georgia State College for Women is offering a number of courses through the correspondence division of the college. Almost every course that is offered in the department is available now for correspondence students. Most important among these are the following: Economics 1, Elementary Economics. Economics 12, the Consumer in Everyday Life (or the Economic Principles of Consumption. Economics 22, Modern Economic Problems. Economics 26, Labor Problems (or the Social Aspects of Industry). Economics 37, Money and Banking. Economics 41, the Economic and Financial History of the United States. Among those offered in Sociology are the following: Sociology 1, Elementary Sociology. Sociology 2, Community Problems. Sociology 22, Modern Social Problems. Sociology 27, Rural Sociology. Sociology 28, The Family.

All of the above-mentioned courses are offered either as two-hour or as three-hour ones. The lesson assignments are already made out and are in the office of Dr. Webber, the director; and students who are leaving the campus, or exes, may begin work on any of them at any time. The courses are general, interesting, and practical.

GREEN FROG

GOOD HAMBURGERS

HOT DOGS

SANDWICHES—Of All Kinds

Snow's Laundry

AND

DRY CLEANING CO.

"Clean With Snow"

GREEN ST. PHONE 440

JOKES

"Hello, is this Scotland Yard?"
"Yes."

"May my children come over and play? I hate to have them playing in the alley."

Famous Surgeon: I've been operating on men for twenty years and I've never heard a complaint. What does that prove?

Frosh: That dead men tell no tales.

ODORLESS DRY

CLEANERS

Three Dresses .. $1.00

Have Your Shoes Repaired At Harrington's Shoe Shop

Expert Workmanship and
First Class Material
PROMPT DELIVERY

We give 10 per cent discount at end of each month. Get your discount ticket.

Harper & Harper
SHOE SHOP
119 W. Hancock St.

BILL'S

KARMELOKOR SHOP

Swift Ice Cream—Bars, Cups
and Cones—Sandwiches.
MEET ME AT BILL'S

Imperial Hotel

Peachtree at Ivy Street
ATLANTA, GA.

Atlanta's Friendly
Hotel

Rates from $1.50

Garage Dining Room

Owned and Operated By
Emory University

Robert Carpenter,
Manager

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTION WORKERS AND CREW MANAGERS

Write immediately for very best student scholarship offers of leading publishers. Can be worked there now Permanent positions if experienced; also summer crews for United States and foreign territory. For full details write, The Collegiate Scholarship Institute, 219 Republic Building, Miami, Fla.

Special Sale Of LADIES' FINE SILK HOSE

All Black, Full Fashioned, Picot Top, Fine Gauge, Cradle Foot. All Pure Silk, Slightly Irregular.
$1.00 Values—

49c

If You Want the Best, Shop At

E. E. BELL'S

